A MESSAGE OF WELCOME

Dear Fellow Breeders,

IT GIVES US GREAT PLEASURE TO WELCOME YOU TO THE 7TH ANNUAL ANGUS ELITE SALE.

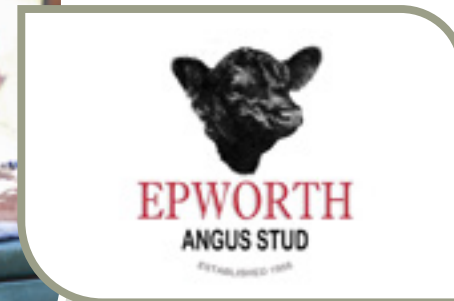

Soos tevore bied ons slegs die beste diere aan wat versigtig geselekteer is vir fenotipe en genetiese eienskappe.

It has become clear in recent years that the South African consumer has become selective and demands quality in favour of quantity, this is indeed a worldwide trend. The quality and character traits of Angus make it an obvious choice for the breeder striving to breed a quality end product.

Our breeding objectives include elements of carcass quality in addition to desirable breeding traits. We have therefore made use of high marbling Bulls in our breeding programs.

Ons is terselfdertyd trots op die kommersiele aanbieding en glo hulle sal enige kudde aanvul.

Rob Kleinloog & Colin Emanuel

WHAT'S A BULL WORTH?

Angus Elite
BLACK & RED
ANGUS SALE

COWMAN FORMULA

INCREASE IN KG'S PER CALF FROM A TOP-PERFORMANCE BULL

X NO. OF COWS BRED TO HIM PER YEAR
X NO. OF YEARS TO KEEP THE BULL
X EXPECTED SELLING PRICE OF CALVES

= ADDITIONAL RANDS
YOU CAN PAY FOR A BETTER BULL

Example: A bull who will add 20kg's to the weaning weight of each his calves mated to 30 cows per year for 3 years and you sell the calves for R30 per kilogram.

20kg's x 30cows = 600 x 3years = 1800 x R30/kg = R54 000

This bull is worth R54 000 more than the average bull who will keep your weaning weights the same. Take this formula and put your own figures in and see what you can afford to pay. This equation does not consider the increase in value due to calving-ease, higher quality replacement heifers, yearling growth, feedlot gain and improved carcass quality.

CHOOSING THE ANGUS BREED

*Numerically, Angus is the biggest beef breed in the world.
This is due to its undisputed merits and outstanding characteristics.
The following traits are the reasons why the breed is so popular in commercial cattle farming:*

CALVING EASE

The breed is famous for its small calves at birth. The average birth mass of Angus calves is 35.1 kg (2004 birth statistics of the ARC).

HIGH FERTILITY

Since 1980, the breed has achieved the highest fertility levels of the ten biggest breeds in the National Beef Performance Testing Scheme. The breed is renowned for its high fertility under all circumstances. The breed also reaches maturity at a very early age (8-12 months), which means that they can calve for the first time at an earlier age. Of the 13 major breeds in the Scheme during the period 1980-90, Angus had the lowest average age at first calving, namely 32 months.

POLLED FACTOR

This trait is increasing in importance due to the elimination of dehorning and carcass injuries. Where Angus bulls are used in a crossbreeding system, approximately 90% of the progeny is polled.

FIXED COLOUR PATTERN

Private research in Natal has shown that weaner calves with a fixed colour pattern achieved a higher price per kg compared to odd-coloured weaners. Angus offers a fixed colour pattern and a choice between red and black. This is still an underestimated trait. Just think about the colour pattern of some commercial herds, especially in poorly planned crossbreeding systems in South Africa, and one must conclude that colour uniformity is much more preferable.

EXCELLENT MATERNAL TRAITS

World wide, Angus is recognised as one of the best mother cow lines due to their good milk production, high fertility, low maintenance requirements and functional udders with small teats. Angus cows are not fastidious grazers and are excellent utilisers of any type of roughage.

OVERALL PIGMENTATION

Angus is a breed with fully pigmented eyes and udders, meaning that diseases such as eye cancer do not occur. Angus is also the only breed that is free from snow-burnt udders during snow-covered North American winters.

A WORLDWIDE GENE POOL

Because numerically Angus is the biggest breed in the world, the gene pool is unlimited. The American Angus Association alone had more than 12 million registered animal records at the end of 1996.

Semen can be imported from the USA, Canada, Argentina, the UK, Australia, New Zealand and Europe. In Argentina more than 70% of the cattle are Angus or crossbred Angus.

GOOD GROWTH

Because more than 50% of the South African calf crop is channelled through feedlots, growth is economically important as calves are purchased per kilogram. It is also true that growth is highly correlated with birth mass.

Consequently, one would deduce that the highest growth should go hand in hand with the highest birth masses. This does not apply to Angus, considering growth per day in relation to birth mass.

Angus growth was higher than average, while its birth mass was on par with average for animals participating in the Intergis. It is not surprising, therefore, that the breed is so renowned for its superb carcass qualities. It has the genetic ability to deposit intramuscular fat (known as marbling).

The result is fine-textured beef of ultimate tenderness, flavour and juiciness - truly the connoisseur's choice. In a test in the USA, Angus was the only breed that scored five out of five for carcass quality in a 47-breed comparison.

BULL MANAGEMENT

WHAT TO DO WITH YOUR NEW ANGUS BULL?

Once you have acquired your registered Angus bull, the following is a check list for managing and effective use of your powerful beef breeding machine:

By: John Boule

1. When you off load the bull he will be aware that he is in a strange environment.

Ensure that he has:

- Clear drinking water
- Some hay or similar roughage
- Some molasses meal
- This will encourage him to eat and drink after his journey from the sale yards/breeders farm to your farm.

2. If he was purchased on a sale, offer him mixed ration (e.g. Voermol SB 100 with maize) for a period of at least one month. You can decrease the amount offered each day from 15kg to (say) 5 kg.

A sudden break in nutrition (i.e., full ration to nothing) will have a bad effect on the bull and possibly his ability to breed.

3. Ideally when you off load the bull, keep him close to your homestead or sheds. This will enable you or another responsible person to check daily on the bull's health.

4. Within the first two days of arrival, it may be a good time to treat him with a pour-on remedy to decrease his tick load.

5. Ensure that the breeder supplies you with his pedigree certificate with breeding values and of great importance, that he is transferred into your name. Also ensure you are in possession of his DNA certificate.

6. Once you are satisfied that the bull has settled down under your local conditions, you could turn him out to the veld (after one month) either with animals (pregnant females and/or oxen) or into the bull herd.

7. Introduction into the latter could be tricky as he would to establish his position in the ranking order. Older bulls assume the senior positions whereas younger bulls assume the more junior positions.

8. If the bull was purchased 6 months in advance of the breeding season, it would be prudent to fertility test him a month prior to the breeding season along with all your other bulls.

9. Remember, if the bull gets sick, treat him, immediately. Spermatogenesis (the production of new sperm) takes 65 days. So, if he is sick, he could be out of action for nearly TWO MONTHS.

10. If he is to be used in a breeding herd of heifers, it is acceptable to turn him in with younger bulls. The breeding ratio (bull to female) should be 1:15.

11. If he is going to be used in the main cow breeding herd, attempt to have a range of ages – not all old senior or all young junior bulls. If so, they will spend time trying to establish their pecking order. Therefore, ideally for a 100 cow herd have – either a 2 year old, 3 year old, 4 year old and 5 year old

OR

2 x 2 year olds

1 x 4 year old

1 x 6 year old bulls

The 6 year old could be viewed as the senior bull.

12. Once the bulls have been turned into the breeding herds, check them at least daily for the first week to ensure they are mating cows.

You may also look for any sickness (any fever can harm spermatogenesis), as well as physical injury – sore foot, hip, hurt penis, swollen testicles, etc.

13. If the bull suffers any injury or is sick, withdraw him immediately to the homestead/shed for test and treatment. Replace him (if possible) with a bull of similar age.

14. Monitor the breeding activity of your bulls on a daily basis to ensure maximum breeding capacity. In such a manner, you will achieve a high conception and therefore calving percentage in the next calving season.

Once the bulls have completed the breeding season, turn them back into one bull camp (there will be fighting to re-establish their pecking order) or into similar sage group camps (where likewise there may still be fighting to establish pecking order).

15. An Eastern Cape farmer has successfully used a donkey jack in his bull herd over past 8 years. The donkey stops any fighting and this young farmer has not lost any bulls due to fighting.

“

Introduction into the latter could be tricky as he would to establish his position in the ranking order. Older bulls assume the senior positions whereas younger bulls assume the more junior positions.

NETHERWOOD CHIEF

We could write a book about the influence Red WAF Cachafaz has had in our breeding program. Chief's sire, Cachafaz, produces a solid group of sons and daughters. Cachafaz has died so these genetics are no longer available.

With the dam going back to Red Crowfoot Ole's Oscar and a good low birth mass along with his long body and calving ease Angus head, he will be the answer to get those cows calving out on grass. Cachafaz has produced an average of a smaller body frame score throughout his offspring. So if you need to downsize your herd, this is the bull.

This cherry red, shaggy, bull with eye appeal has width, a strong line and consistency. Ricochet is one of our feature calving ease bulls with a -0.61 BW EBV and 27kgs birth weight, he is sure to get the job done. His dam is a moderate-made, athletic, dark red cow that's persistent in the herd. Sire, Mequatling Gunslinger, who was a powerhouse, medium frame bull with an unbelievable hind quarter and serious length of body as can be seen in all of his progeny offered on sale.

This bull's sire, Gunslinger, excelled on South Africa's largest Angus official Phase D growth Test and grew at 2.172kg per day and achieved 18% more kg gain per day than the average bull.

NETHERWOOD BONKERS

The Leader of the Pack...

This eye-appealing bull has length and good bone. Bonkers is a bull that always has the look out of a nice moderate-framed cow. The replacements should be hard to beat and the weaner calves should push down on the scale. Honky Tonk provided genetics to the market with outstanding phenotype, strength in efficiency and strong maternal pedigree. Bonkers has a great temperament that's worth noticing in this bull.

We have thought long and hard whether to sell this bull. Zorba was used in our heifer program in our last season and we are looking forward to seeing the calves pop out later this year. This bull comes from one of the well-producing cow families who are known for their exceptional quality. Tight and tidy udder structure, stout design with excellent foot size. Once again, these Cachafaz genetics are hard to come by, since the death of Cachafaz in Argentina. Zorba is definitely one of our feature power bulls. He is big-hipped, wide-topped, with lots of thickness of body. If you need hind quarter in your herd, this is the perfect bull for you. This bull was very well liked at the Royal Show both this and last year. After winning his classes, he also performed outstandingly in every group class he took part in. Zorba is a bull that has extremely efficient genetics for any herd. Definite Stud Sire Prospect.
